

What is this program all about?

K is for Kindergarten is a free school readiness program, developed for children eligible for school entry in September 2019. This 8 session program is designed to help prepare parents and children for the transition to kindergarten.

Children will participate in an emergent curriculum environment parallel to the formal school system. The curriculum includes play based activities that build social skills, early math, fine and gross motor skills, as well as language and literacy development.

Every session parents will participate in a discussion that offers tools and strategies for a smooth transition into kindergarten. Topics will focus on self-regulation, learning styles and communication.

“Remember, you are your child’s greatest teacher and role model.”

"Sending my first child to school has been an overwhelming/scary thought – not knowing how to prepare her and myself for the transition. I feel much better prepared to support her with this transition and fostering a positive learning environment at home. This has been a great experience, thank you so much."
